It's like everything, we get a zillion things coming at us, including right now the budget process, and some things get stuck on the back burner, even if it's just to play second fiddle for a few days or a couple of weeks, even if we care passionately about what is momentarily on hold.

Please understand that I personally want this to move forward without delay, and also that I appreciate and respect Conrad's respectful persistence -- indeed, I hope I've encouraged it. But sometimes around here, we travel at a desperate pace to get things done that are happening more or less right this second, or in the next day or so. That's the reality for me and others here, and so, for example, at this moment, I'm responding to some unrelated but immediate media inquiries, while I'm also drafting resolutions and speeches re things happening tomorrow and the next day in Council, finishing a newsletter to be sent out, etc. So patience is warranted. Not sure yet about when time might be available for a call or in-person meeting; maybe Jeff has a good sense of such things...

Hi Paul:

I ran into Conrad Romo this weekend and I understand he has a proposal for his Melrose Bellow event he'd like to review with you. He'd like to hold the event on Saturday, July 9 which doesn't give him a lot of time to plan and execute. Could we have a conference call or even an in-person meeting this week to get moving on this project?

Let me know what works for you.

Best,
Kim
